

X-ray imaging of core structure

The Core Facility has used extremity x-ray facilities at Fairview University Hospital (on campus) in the past, with good success. However, these arrangements are subject to student technician and room availability at the hospital, and have not always been convenient or affordable.

We hope to obtain one of the core-specific x-ray instruments currently being developed and sold with multi-sensor loggers and x-ray fluorescence scanners within the next year. In the meantime, other area hospitals may be persuaded to assist the researcher after hours at a reasonable cost.